Gulf Program axed

BY RICHARD MEEK

A proposed budget cut to eliminate the Gulf of Mexico Program, which is administered through the Environmental Protection Agency, may be devastating to the valuable Gulf waters, program officials said.

Elimination of the program may also mean the loss of 36 jobs for the program's employees, who are headquartered at Stennis Space Center. The program was eliminated in a proposed 1996 budget recommendation by the U.S. House of Representatives' Appropriation Committee.

"The greatest loss would be the energy and time put into the effort by so many volunteers," said Program Director Douglas Lipka Friday. "I would hate to see that not continue."

The program has been described as a "grassroots" based organization that addresses problems such as coastal erosion, closing of shellfish beds, reductions in the shrimp yield, habitat losses, beach debris and beach closings.

Founded in 1989, funding has grown from an initial $300,000 to $4 million. The program helps establish cooperative efforts between scientists, fishermen, governments and others along the five border states of the Gulf of Mexico.

Lipka said progress has been made in several states, including Mississippi, in the restoration of habitat.

"We have helped restore lost habitat in several coastal areas," he said. "With what we have done, we can progress. It must continue."

Lipka said the habitat resto-

Ladner: County will help Bay

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Hancock County Board of Supervisors President Michael Ladner says county officials probably will come up with money to help the city pump a sand beach downtown.

But Ladner was irate at the recent suggestion by Mayor Eddie Favre that unless the county chips into the project, the city may have to scrap funding for some politically popular programs.

"We feel like we can still come up with the money -- if not this year, then next year," Ladner said Thursday. "We don't want them to scrap the plans, by all means."

Ladner made the statement after releasing written thoughts on the matter, in the form of a letter to area senior citizens and officials of Save Our Children.

He was reacting to a Thursday story in The Sea Coast Echo which quoted Favre as saying unless the county is willing to help fund the $700,000 beach project, the city may have to forego building a new center for senior citizens, a ballfield complex and cut funding to Save Our Children.

Ladner expressed concern over the prospect of such deletions in the city's plans, and said he wanted to assure area senior citizens and the Save Our Children operation that if the county had the money to help the city, it would do so.

The city is under the gun to take action on bids it received last month to create a 5,000-foot stretch of beach front downtown. With total project costs hovering at $700,000, city officials have only $250,000 budgeted for the project.

In two recent meetings, Favre has asked the Board of Supervisors to help finance the project, arguing that the county-wide seawall tax fund should be tapped for the project. County officials have contended, however, that next year's seawall fund will be all but depleted by the time the county pays for what it has lined up: parking lots and comfort stations in Bay St. Louis and Waveland, maintenance of the beach, debt service on a bond issue, and the county's share of federal repairs to the deteriorating seawall.

During the last city-county meeting, some supervisors suggested they may consider postponing some projects of their own to help the city out next year. But they left it up to the city to come up with some solid financial proposal that would leave the county in a position to participate in the project.

Airport gives aid to Phillips

BY RICHARD MEEK

Stennis International Airport is cutting Phillips Aviation's rent effective Aug. 1 because of the slowdown in air traffic at the airport.

Phillips is the Fixed Base Operator at Stennis.

"We asked for (the rent reduction)," said Gene Phillips, owner of Phillips Aviation.

"The reduction is extremely important to us," he said. "I still don't know if we will be able to (remain in business)."

"Right now, our residual income is below our residual expenses. You can't expect to stay in business that way."

Effective Aug. 1, Phillips' rent will drop from $1,458.33 a month to $800 a month for the balance of the primary lease, which expires February 28, 1998. However, the company will be granted a two-year extension provided proper renovations in its lobby are completed, subject to the approval of airport General Manager Bill Stovall.

Additionally, if in any month commercial flights number 28 or more, the rent will revert back to its original amount. In March of '98,

Phillips' rent will be increased by $200, to be tacked on to whatever the company is paying at the time.

"(Phillips) has been a good tenant for the airfield," Stovall said. "We want to work with them during this slow time."

Airport traffic has been at a virtual standstill since the shutdown of charter carrier Express One in early June.

Stennis is losing approximately $30,000 per month in lost revenue.

The only significant traffic is on weekends, when Air Nevada is bringing in an average of three charter flights for the Jubilee Casino. However, those planes are smaller than the DC-9s Express One was fly-

The issue of who pays for what has created an unusual degree of friction between the Courthouse and City Hall. County officials say the city assured them for months that the only help the city needed with the project was in securing amendments and extensions to the county's permit to pump a sand beach. City officials say they never ruled out asking the county for financial help as well.

Thursday, Ladner raised that question again, and questioned why the city had appropriated $500,000 for the project last year -- only to cut that amount in half in this year's budget. City officials say the $500,000 was re-allocated to other, immediate needs while they waged a long quest to secure state and federal permits for the project.

City officials, meanwhile, are wondering why the city beach, from Washington Street northward, wasn't included in the county's major beach renourishment effort last year.

On the financial front, Ladner cited the vast difference in what the city receives in revenue sharing from Casino Magic, and what the county gets in revenue sharing from Jubilee Casino -- a gap of millions in the city's favor.

The county, Ladner noted, by law must direct all but 30 percent of its gaming revenues to the school district, the sheriff's department, the library, volunteer fire districts and tax reduction.

And, Ladner said, the county this year has spent $85,000 in matching money for Corps of Engineers' work to shore up the seawall in the city between Ulman Avenue and Bay View Court. Another $50,000, he said, has been spent by the county to improve the Washington Street pier.

"I regret that the mayor has taken the position he has, to do away with worthy projects as to make it look like it is the county's fault that the senior citizens and children of the city will be penalized and deprived," Ladner said.

"...I can assure all of you that the county would never deprive the senior citizens and the children of Hancock County of anything as long as I am on the board," said Ladner.

tation Commission last December, contending that the state failed to ensure that the utilities were removed from the pathway of a project to widen Highway 603 from Highway 90 to Stennis International Airport.

Delays in widening the route, SCI contends, were not the fault of the contractor but the state's failure to make sure the utilities were relocated for the project.

In the latest action, the state continues to deny that delays in the utility removals caused or contributed to SCI's delays in completing the work.

Still, the state says it shouldn't be held responsible for the delays. Instead, the state wants any such judgment to be against the utilities, including:

- South Central Bell Telephone Co.
- Mississippi Power Co.
- Coast Electric Power Association.
- Parkmore Management Corp.

Corp.

- United Gas Pipeline, Inc.
- Southern Regional Wastewater Management District, formerly known as Waveland Regional Wastewater.

- U.S. Cable Television Group, L.P., doing business as Multivision Cable T.V.

The state contends that its officials notified all the utility owners on April 10, 1990, of the construction project, and received agreements to have the utilities removed. Almost four years' passed, however, before all of the individual utility owners completed the utility relocation process, the state says.

"Despite repeated attempts by the commission to have these utility conflicts removed prior to the initiation of work on the project site by SCI, Inc., the (utility owners) failed to remove their utilities in a timely manner," the state claims.

A hearing on the matter is tentatively set for July 31.

ing in. The smaller planes also mean less in landing fees to the airport and fewer gallons of fuel Phillips is able to sell.

"Fuel sale was the only place we ever made money on," Phillips said.

He reported he has laid off almost his entire staff. Currently, he and his daughter-in-law are the only two full-time employees on the payroll. He has two other part-time employees that he pays on a per-job basis.

At one time, Phillips employed eight full-time employees.

"We will bring people back if business increases," Phillips said. "But at this point, we are not spending money on anything we don't have to."

Phillips said his maintenance business on light aircraft will at least carry them "through the rest of the year." He said he may also diversify into plane restoration.

"There are several areas we can go into to make a living," Phillips said. "That's our first concern."

"We can make it without the charters," added Phillips, who moved his operation, which includes a hanger for storage, from Diamondhead's airport to Stennis in 1988.

"But I would rather make it with them," he said. "We can stay unless everything goes to pot."

If Phillips would fold, that would leave the airport without a critical FBO. Stovall said he was confident that "we would have an FBO" in the event of Phillips' closing.

"I don't know," Phillips said. "Somebody would take it but if I can't make it, I don't know who can."

"We are all things to all people."

Stovall said at this point he is pursuing other charter carriers. In the future, though, he said he hopes to recruit cargo carriers.

EDITORIAL

Waveland guilty of error in judgment

A state commission will decide if the City of Waveland acted inappropriately in awarding its cellular phone contract through a company co-owned by a Waveland police officer.

But no matter how the commission rules, Waveland city officials are at least guilty of an error in judgment. The move smacks of good-old-boy, business-as-usual politics. Ironically, it was a commitment to avoid these types of back-door politics that helped elect an entire new Board of Aldermen and mayor last fall. The city is trying to recover from the past four years of such tomfoolery.

The latest controversy began when the State Ethics Commission ruled the city had to switch cellular phone companies. The city had a contract with Cellular South, but since Alderman Jay Fleuriot was an agent for the company, the ethics commission ruled continued business with Cellular South would be an ethics violation.

That left Waveland in a bind, since the only other cellular service on the Gulf Coast is Century Cellnet. But city officials should have shown more discretion than to award the contract to an agent who owns a cellular phone company with a city cop. The proper course of action would have been for Mayor John Mason to contact Century Cellnet, explain the dilemma, and have company officials send an independent agent with no city connections to write the contract.

Even Mason now admits that would have been the smart play.

This is not to discredit agent Linda Thomas and Waveland police officer Reggie Smith. All reports are their business is thriving, and Smith's ambition is certainly to be applauded.

Unfortunately, the affair has left a stench over City Hall, just what the fledgling administration does not need at this time. It seems almost since inauguration, Fleuriot and Mason have been at odds.

Their wars have escalated in recent weeks, even playing in prime-time news. Can the Fox spinoff Waveland Place be far behind?

Fleuriot and Mason have squabbled over everything from cellular phones, to budgets, to water meters. Both officials are guilty of childish behavior.

A skirmish of this lineage, however, invariably yields no winner, and the city's citizens are the biggest losers. While the board referees Mason's and Fleuriot's antics, city streets are turned into rivers and lakes during a heavy rain. Citizens' homes continue to flood because the biggest problem Waveland faces, drainage, is being ignored. Where are the priorities?

Most would like to lock Fleuriot and Mason in a room and throw away the key until they can agree to bury their respective hatchets and agendas. The two made a light-hearted attempt at reconciliation at the end of Wednesday's meeting, but given the behind-the-scenes backstabbing of this past week, the conciliatory facade could hardly be taken seriously.

Perhaps no one loves Waveland more than Alderman Tommy Longo. He is a lifelong resident of the city, and his dad, Johnny, was the city mayor for 16 years. In all likelihood, it is a chair Tommy will one day occupy.

But it was a frustrated and concerned Tommy Longo who said late last week, "I wish we could put all of this behind us and move forward."

Great advice, Alderman Longo. Could you please pass it on to your mayor and fellow colleague.

IN CONGRESS

By Rep. Gene Taylor

South Mississippi cities gain funds for crime and drug programs

Several South Mississippi cities will soon receive some ammunition from the federal government in the war against drugs and crime, announced Congressman Gene Taylor.

Taylor said the Housing Authorities in Picayune, Lumberton, Bay St. Louis and Biloxi will receive a total of $600,000 in grant money to assist officials in keeping drugs and drug-related crimes out of their neighborhoods.

"Our local officers do a fine job with a limited amount of resources," Taylor said. "I hope these funds will help them in their efforts to keep South Mississippi a safe place to live."

Picayune will receive $177,000 to use for off-duty police officers as housing security officers, and for drug education and substance abuse prevention programs. The prevention programs will include healthy alternatives to drug use and trafficking. The funds will also be used to provide counseling, referral to treatment, after care and educational and employment opportunities.

Bay St. Louis will receive $49,968 to establish a "beat cop" patrol of three housing developments, to procure a graffiti removal machine, to install a 2,035 foot security fence, and to establish a drug prevention program for children and adults through the Hancock County Narcotics Task Force to Save Our Children.

Biloxi will use $250,074 for Reserve Police Officers to patrol with housing security during two shifts four days a week. The funds will also be used for a computer and other equipment to assist in reporting and tracking the program and criminal activity.

Lumberton will receive $50,000 for supplemental officers and drug abuse prevention education activities which include both parents and youth. Additionally, Lumberton will receive $69,243 to renovate a community center and assist with existing programs including organized sports, gymnastics, dance and art classes, personal grooming classes, job readiness sessions and drama programs.

"We're sending a message to criminals and drug dealers, and it's not a nice one," Taylor said. "We're serious about cracking down on drugs and drug offenders."

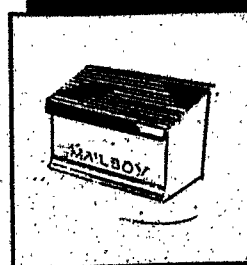

The grants were awarded by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development under the Public and Indian Housing Drug Elimination Program.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Do the math, show the numbers, a/k/a government accountability

To the Editor:

Cellular phone purchasing and use by the city has provided a much-needed controversy to occur — sorry. My intention is not to cause problems, but rather work for solutions. However in its wake it has caused scrutiny of municipal accounting procedures and refocusing (one more time) on the ever-present problem which I see for this community, namely the deplorable situation to be found in its sewer, drainage and road systems.

Incidentally, no cellular phones or services were ever purchased from me by the City of Waveland. This is the kind of accusation people utter in the heat of argument who don't know the facts.

As an elected official, it is my responsibility to scrutinize the affairs of the city, sometimes asking probing questions.

I have seen the budget. I have studied the budget. I cannot understand the budget. This might make one chuckle, but it has become a more serious matter when it was found that an independent municipal auditor, who is accustomed to working city budgets, cannot understand Waveland's budget either.

Quite simply, the budget accounting procedure in use today does not give information allowing the administration to know if it has overspent itself. It is as if you deposited money into your checking account without knowing the amounts of checks you wrote against it.

The present accounting method may have worked in the past, but our municipal responsibilities have become too complex in the present.

The budget needs to be more descriptive about where the money is going.

Finally, how does all this relate to our roads? It allows us to know at a glance how much money was used for items like cellular phones, which can be considered fat (what about 2-way radios? 10/4?), and how much was used for sewer pipe, gravel, digging equipment and the salary of public works personnel to direct and use them. Our current accounting system does not spell this out.

I am determined that if any further increase in spending is to occur, it will be in the direction of public works and law enforcement, even if this includes giving them a cellular phone with unlimited use. It is well worth the added investment to have adequate drainage and sleep safely at night.

"CUEVAS' QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Nothing which is becoming a reality is the construction of a parking lot on Beach Boulevard at Washington Street in Bay St. Louis.

This is a project which has been in the works for really as long as the renourishment of the sand beach. It just takes so long to get something done nowadays, but I am hoping the new parking lot will be properly utilized and patrolled when it is completed.

I am told security is number one on the minds of the property owners along Beach Boulevard.

Bay St. Louis' officials are still trying to come up with a plan of financing the sand beach project in the Bayview Court area.

I look at that old live oak every time I drive down Beach Boulevard hoping it is still standing.

Something will have to be done in that area soon, as the barrier between the water and road is shrinking at a rapid rate.

I am hoping the old live oak is sturdy enough to survive that long.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

A Weekly Editorial
From Mississippi Economic Council

MEC upset with Cochran's tort vote

The Mississippi Economic Council expressed its "deep concern" Thursday that U.S. Senator Thad Cochran abandoned state businesses in a critical vote against federal legislation that would have improved the civil justice system.

Just Wednesday, noted MEC Chairman Steve McMahon of Jackson, Senator Cochran had voted to strengthen the proposed bill.

On Thursday, when attempts were made to end Senate debate on the tort reform measure and put it in position for a floor vote, Cochran, in an apparent reversal, voted against ending debate, leaving the bill in danger of being killed by filibuster.

"The issue of civil justice, or tort, reform is a fundamental business issue," said McMahon. "While we have made major strides in tort reform at the state level, it is critical that federal legislation be enacted to provide relief to businesses with multi-state operations."

McMahon said business owners and operators in Mississippi had been assured by Cochran that he would vote to end debate and move the issue to the floor for an up or down vote.

"We have deep concern that Senator Cochran abandoned us at the last minute," the MEC chairman said.

"We have to contrast his vote against business with the position taken by Senator Trent Lott, who took the lead in supporting tort reform and who led the effort to end debate and move the bill into position for a final vote."

Similar legislation has been approved by the U.S. House of Representatives. In that business-supported vote, four members of Mississippi's House delegation voted for the bill.

"We have expressed our appreciation to Representatives Gene Taylor, Sonny Montgomery, Mike Parker, and Roger Wicker for their support," McMahon said, "and we have commended Senator Lott for his leadership in support of tort reform."

"It is disappointing to us that two members of our Washington delegation, Representative Bennie Thompson and Thad Cochran, have voted against business owners and operators in Mississippi."

The Mississippi Economic Council, a private association of business leaders, has a membership of more than 3,000 businesses in Mississippi.

BREWER'S WORLD

By Jimmie Brewer

A leaner, meaner Brewer

It was not too long ago when I thought the need to exercise and diet was for everyone but me. After all, I was a young father of two children, barely tipping the scales at 125 pounds and staying extremely active. Then they invented VCRs, microwave ovens, and baggy jeans. Large fluffy sofas with lots of oversized pillows and the remote control soon became my best friends. Suddenly, my physical attributes began taking on a different look. My once 28-inch waist ballooned to 34 inches, my arms began to wilt and disappear, and my legs began to look like they belonged to a chicken.

Bathroom mirrors, cameras, and camcorders were now my enemy. Things had to change. After all, I still have plenty of living left to do in this world, the gruesome twosome seem to be getting more active with each passing day, and I don't want to go to my grave looking like a large golf ball with toothpicks sticking out in every direction. Exercise seemed to be the only remedy, and after countless mornings drinking coffee and smoking cigarettes and telling myself today is the day, I finally took the plunge.

For two days in a row now, I have left my cigarettes and coffee cup on the dining room table and hauled my derriere out in the great outdoors, pedaling around paradise on a bike. That's right dudes and dudettes, Arnold Schwarzenegger better look out because Uncle Brewer has been on an exercise binge lately and the results are beginning to show.

I now have extreme shortness of breath. My blood circulation has stopped flowing to my major organs. My back, which was once only slightly slumped, now juts forward at a 45-degree angle. My legs, the same ones that used to propel me around first and second base as a kid, now seem to have a bit of an attitude problem, and don't want to work at all.

The arms attached to my shoulders, which I hauled around for 35 years, now ache just lifting a Salem from my shirt pocket to my mouth.

The only good thing that happened during my two mornings of torture is that a quick check on the scales shows the weight pouring off. I have a lost a grand total of two-thirds of one pound. Now, instead of weighing in at 173 pounds, I am down to a lean 172 and one-third pounds.

I am sure somewhere in JC Penney corporate offices, some big cheese is trying to locate my number for an audition to model their new line of underwear. But, until they locate it, I think I'll jump on that sofa and flip through the channels.

Praise for do-gooders this week goes out to those dudes and dudettes who make those baggy jeans. Peace.

ration process has been a "cooperative effort" of several agencies.

He said the other area of major importance is the opening up of oyster beds in the Gulf. He said nearly 60 percent of oyster beds in the Gulf are closed, but improved technology developed through the Gulf of Mexico Program will allow some beds to open in the fall.

Lipka said a workshop is scheduled next month that will bring together scientists and others to determine what areas will be open.

"We have the technology, now we must focus on where to use it," he said.

Lipka called the program elimination the "worst case scenario."

"We all anticipated some form of budget cuts, especially with the trend to reduce the deficit," he said. "The depth of the cuts we did not anticipate."

The House Appropriations Committee spared the EPA's two other similar projects. The Chesapeake Bay Program, budget at $21 million, and the Great Lakes Program with a $14.7 million were not affected.

Lipka said part of the reason is that they are protected under the Clean Water Act.

The committee's recommendation is just the first step in a long process. The entire budget must go before the full House, and then to the Senate. Lipka is hoping someone in the process will have a change of heart.

"I hope reason prevails," he said.

Norma Ritch of Bay St. Louis petitioned Representative Gene Taylor and Senators Trent Lott and Thad Cochran through a letter to "make the program a major part of the Appropriations Committee budget and save the lives and future of not only Mississippi but essentially the world. We are all connected to our waterways, and this one has to be enhanced, not ignored."

She said the "Gulf provides the life support system to every aspect of the world. From fisheries and wildlife to water quality, this program gives the education and informational benefits needed to help conserve our natural resources and thus protecting our very existence."

Lipka said protection of the 600,000 square miles of the Gulf of Mexico is "something we must all get involved in. There are things we all can do."

"Some of it is volunteer, some of it takes some dollars," he said. "But so much of our culture depends on (the Gulf's) resources."

Lipka said 11 of the program's 36 employees are employed by the EPA. He said there also are some 300 volunteers, including scientists, fishermen and many others who help with the program.

Prudhomme airs cooking show on ETV

"Probably for the last eight or nine years the one thing I've been hearing from people are questions on how to modify their diet, while, most importantly, maintaining the flavor and consistency that is so much a part of the foods they enjoy eating," explains America's favorite chef, Paul Prudhomme.

So he began working in his test kitchen, creating dishes that were low in fat—yet disappointingly lacking in flavor.

"Then, all of a sudden—after 10 years—I figured it out," said Chef Paul, "and six months later I had Chef Paul Prudhomme's Fork in the Road done."

With Chef Paul Prudhomme's Fork in the Road, the 26-part television series and best-selling cookbook of the same title, Prudhomme invited people to discover a flavorful new direction in cooking.

"Fork in the Road doesn't require people to change their whole idea of what food is supposed to look like and taste like," says Prudhomme, "it offers normal foods that people eat every day—prepared a different way."

The series presents a model for anyone who wants to learn how to modify their cooking style to minimize the use of rich, calorie-laden ingredients, yet retain the essential taste and texture that makes them so delicious. The show airs Saturdays at 4 p.m. beginning July 22 on ETV.

A 1994 Mississippi law is making University of Southern Mississippi students like Bettie Freeman and Marilyn Davis more marketable.

House Bill 1467, passed during the 1994 Mississippi Legislature, mandated that all secondary schools add a course known as Family Dynamics to their curriculum by fall 1997. The new law means Freeman, who graduated from USM in May with a degree in family and consumer sciences, and Davis, who hopes to finish a similar degree in December 1996, should find plenty of job opportunities in their chosen field: teaching home economics.

"There is a tremendous demand for home economics teachers, mainly because of the passage of House Bill 1467," said Dr. Anita Stamper, director of USM's School of Family and Consumer Sciences. "Professionals in the field were involved in pushing this bill from the start and we were very glad to see it adopted."

Family dynamics involves a broad scope of practical and academic studies that help prepare students for both the job market and the homefront, Stamper said. The course could just as easily be called Life 101, Davis said.

"The focus of home economics is totally different now," said Davis. "... I could never have survived without the living skills I learned in home economics. Today, those necessary living skills are a lot more complex."

Home economics has long had a reputation for teaching students how to sew and cook. But the curriculum always has included areas like child development and nutrition, both hot career fields today, Stamper said. Enrollment in those programs at USM have seen "tremendous growth" in the last 10 years, she said.

Preparing students to pass on their knowledge in a secondary classroom is just as important, Stamper said. Freeman started work on a degree in home economics 20 years ago but left school to build a family and a business, Crossgates Christian Supply Center, with her husband, Glenn. In 1993, she returned to school and knew from the start she wanted to teach in a field of home economics.

"I see such a need for young people to develop these kinds of skills. So many young people are just not getting basic skills," she said. Continued work with youth through her church and as a 4-H Club sponsor convinced her "kids need to have skills that they can use immediately, either in a job or in their daily lives."

Davis began taking classes in 1987 while working with USM's Department of Residence Life. When a course demanded she make a teaching presentation, Davis knew she had found her niche.

"It was kind of like I always should have been doing this," she said.

Freeman and Davis both said they have received encouragement throughout their educational pursuits from faculty in USM's School for Family and Consumer Sciences. Each also received financial support from USM's Stella Harper McNeil Scholarship, which provides funds for young women with an interest and talent in home economics.

The scholarship, established by her family in 1993 and administered by the USM Foundation, honors Stella Harper McNeil, who spent her life involved in home economics education in the classroom and in her home.

Freeman's quest already has paid off in a job. She starts work this fall at North Forrest High School in its food service program, teaching students to work in that field. Davis is confident she'll be just as fortunate when she graduates.

Stamper thinks societal trends will only continue to create demand for home economics study and teachers. For many youngsters, junior and senior high school may be one of the few chances available for learning basic living skills, she said.

That makes it imperative for USM's School of Family and Consumer Sciences to stay on top of the latest professional issues, incorporate appropriate training and tout opportunities like the McNeil scholarship.

Home economics teachers

"Home economics grew out of the need to prepare mainly women to make a home functional," Stamper said. "Now the field encompasses programs that prepare men and women to manage child care facilities, to enter the food preparation industry, to work in health departments and nutritional programs — and you have to have qualified educators to prepare students to enter those fields."

Cochran announces funding for military

The Senate Appropriations Committee approved $33.25 million for military construction projects in Mississippi, Senator Thad Cochran announced.

"This action by the Appropriations Committee is good news for Mississippi. The funding provided for these projects in our state is almost double the amount requested by President Clinton and will help maintain a well trained and well equipped military force for our nation," Cochran said.

The military construction bill includes:

- * $10.2 million for road relocation work at the Air National Guard Combat Readiness Training Center in Gulfport.
- * $9.3 million to replace 98 family housing units at Keesler Air Force Base.
- * $6.5 million to upgrade student dormitories at Keesler Air Force Base.
- * $5 million for the first phase of construction of a Multipurpose Range Complex at Camp Shelby.
- * $1.15 million for a Fire Training Facility at Columbus Air Force Base.

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

After a quick hello, my friend immediately rushed into, "Is there something wrong with me?" She was so agitated and anxious that she made the long-distance call sound local. She kept repeating, "Is there something wrong with me?"

With the greatest urgency, she went on to recount what had just happened to her at a prayer gathering for healing.

"I looked around in amazement as the healing priest laid his hands on one person after another, praying strongly. He seemed bent on praying until the person fell to the floor. I had never seen this before; so I could not understand.

"Certainly I did not want this to happen to me as I moved up in the line. It seemed awfully strange that people were falling in rapid succession and being caught by two men. No, I would not let this happen to me.

"Close your eyes," the priest told me when I finally made it to the front. "Let yourself go and pray." He pressed his hands on my head and prayed hard, apparently determined that I would go down. But I did not go down.

"Now I feel something is wrong with me, since everyone else was going down, but I did not fall to the floor. I was afraid because it was all so strange and did not seem to make any sense. I did not want to lie there embarrassed."

Her reaction and apprehension were not at all atypical of people exposed for the first time to "being slain" or "resting" in the Spirit. Falling back unconscious is not exactly what healthy people want to happen to them.

Yet, this is of common occurrence in the various branches of the Pentecostal churches, among the Catholic Charismatics, also known as Catholic Pentecostals, and among more recent communities such as the Full Gospel Baptist Church.

Though not specifically mentioned in the Scriptures, the phenomenon of resting in the Spirit has its roots in the gifts of the Spirit as outlined by Paul in chapter 12 of his first letter to the Corinthians.

Being slain or resting in the Spirit is not far removed from certain instances of "getting happy" while intense singing or praying is in progress. The latter occurrence is routinely accepted even in churches unacquainted with the experience labeled resting in the Spirit.

There can be a thin line here between a more natural experience and a more supernatural one. Recall for a moment the greatly similar phenomenon of people passing out in concerts from the time of the bobby-soxers of Frank Sinatra to the devotees of Elvis Presley, Otis Redding and Pattie LaBelle.

Several years ago, while I conducted a healing Mass and did the anointing, over 90 percent of 300 people there sank back and rested in the Spirit. It was not the first time, but certainly the most notable in my experience.

While some instances of resting in the Spirit are probably of natural origin due to autosuggestion or an overeagerness to experience what others are feeling, there is no doubt that the divine residue of Pentecost still smolders among us.

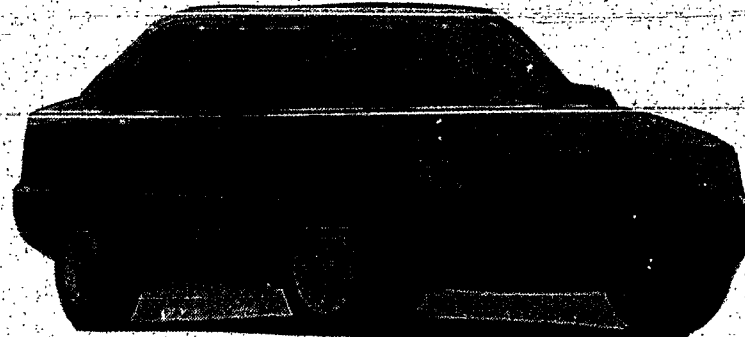

It is useless to try to explain what is going on here. Suffice it to say that we should not presume to oppose the wondrous workings of the Spirit. "The wind blows where it will... So it is with everyone born of the Spirit" (Jn. 3:8).

Senate panel reports out Lott bill to reauthorize Amtrak

A bill to get Amtrak back on its feet and give it the flexibility to operate more like a private business was reported out of the Senate Commerce Committee.

Authored by U.S. Senator Trent Lott, chairman of the surface Transportation and Merchant Marine Subcommittee, the reauthorization legislation proposes to reform and revitalize the National Rail Passenger Transportation Corporation known as Amtrak.

The bill is intended to eliminate Amtrak's operating deficit, which is expected to approach $2.5 billion over the next five years, and to provide a steady source of funding for Amtrak's capital needs.

The bill incorporates the recommendations of Amtrak's regional forums conducted around the country earlier this year to address the comprehensive, long-term reform of Amtrak. The forums involved Amtrak officials, transportation experts, and residents of communities served by Amtrak.

"I want to eliminate Amtrak's need for operating subsidies by the end of five years," Lott said after the committee hearing. "To put Amtrak on the right track for the 21st Century, Congress first must modify or eliminate legislative restrictions that do not apply to businesses other than Amtrak."

We also need to remove outdated rules which impede Amtrak's labor relations."

Lott said that Amtrak contends that if it is given the maximum flexibility to make labor and procurement reforms, to operate like a private business, and to diversify its operations it will have an operating balance within five years and no longer need federal subsidies.

"Amtrak's links to the rest of the nation are critical to Mississippi's tourism industry, to municipal and regional economies, and the needs of individual Mississippi travelers," Lott said. "A strong Amtrak system can only maximize Mississippi's economic opportunities and growth."

Lott credited Meridian Mayor John Robert Smith and Gil Carmichael, also of Meridian, the former administrator of the Federal Railroad Administration, for their contributions to the process of developing the legislation. It next goes to the full Senate for its consideration.

Bassin' with the pros

Buzzbaits for big summer bass

Larry Nixon's "secret" lure also happens to be the "secret" lure of about 150 other professional bass fishermen.

"It's a buzzbait," laughs Nixon, winner of more than $1 million in tournament prize money and a member of the Evinrude Outboard Pro Staff.

"I think it's one of the best big-bass lures available, and I keep one handy from late spring through September."

Nixon believes the slow-turning, clacking blade bait aggravates bass more than attracts them the way other topwater lures do. That's why buzzbait strikes are so ferocious.

"Two of the most important considerations when fishing a buzzbait are to work it as close to heavy cover as possible, and to fish it as slow as you can," explains Nixon. "A fast buzzbait retrieve seldom gets much attention."

Buzzbaits really started becoming popular among professional bass fishermen in 1977 and 1978 when the lure played a key role in tournament wins for one of Nixon's close friends and competitors, Rick Clunn. Since then, Nixon has tried to become a master at using the lure.

Red Cross issues appeal

The Gulf Coast Blood Services Region of the American Red Cross has issued an emergency appeal to communities in our region for all types of blood.

Faced with a critical shortage of blood for accident victims, surgeries and patients needing treatment for cancer, infectious diseases, dialysis and other serious health conditions, the Red Cross is asking all eligible donors with all blood types to give blood as soon as possible at the nearest Red Cross Chapter or at an upcoming scheduled Red Cross blood drive.

To be eligible to donate, you must be at least 17 years old, weigh at least 110 pounds, and have not given blood in the last 56 days.

Red Cross blood drives are being held throughout the Gulf Coast region and at local Red Cross Chapters. For information about where or when to give blood, please call your local Red Cross Chapter or 1-800-GIVE-LIFE.

"In the summer months, the prime time to fish a buzzbait is early in the morning, especially around stumps, lily pads, grass beds, and fallen logs," says the Evinrude pro, "but you don't have to put the lure away after the sun gets high."

"I also like to fish buzzbaits around rock rip rap and beside bridge pilings in the middle of the day. I've seen huge bass caught on buzzbaits in the hottest part of the day."

Many anglers complain about missing bass when using buzzbaits, and Nixon believes the problem may be improper rod selection.

"A good buzzbait rod will probably be a medium to medium-heavy action with a flexible tip that bends when the bass hits so the fish can engulf the lure," he explains, "but it also has to have plenty of strength to handle the fish."

Nixon also advises trying to hesitate for an extra split second after a bass hits before setting the hook.

"If you can train yourself to wait until you firmly feel the fish on the lure, you'll probably improve your hook-up ratio," he says, "but that's hard to do."

"For some reason buzzbaits attract big bass, and when they strike, it's difficult to hesitate for anything because it's so sudden and explosive."

Mail-order deception teaches hard lessons

By Dr. Ann Jarratt
4-H Youth Development
Cooperative Extension Service

About four months ago, I saw a small advertisement in the back of a teen magazine for a quick weight-loss plan and sent away for it. I sent a check, which has cleared the bank, but I still haven't received the plan. The diet plan was expensive, and now I realize that I have been cheated and have wasted my money.

"I'm too embarrassed to tell my parents — they let me have a checking account on the condition that I use my money wisely. What should I do?"

What a hard lesson to learn! It hurts your pride to know you've been taken, and it cramps your cash flow when you lose your money. Two pains for the price of one.

There are a few things you can do. Check the advertisement for the diet plan and see if a telephone number or address is listed for the company. If there is none, call telephone directory assistance and ask for the number of the company.

If you're unable to get a telephone number from either of these sources, get the phone numbers of the Better Business Bureau and the office of the Attorney General in the state where the company is located.

Call that number and ask for information regarding the company. Register your complaint at that time.

If you do get in touch with the diet plan company, tell them that your check has cleared the bank but you still have no diet plan. Request a full refund by a specific date.

Be prepared to tell them that if you have not received a full refund by the stated date you will file a complaint with the Better Business Bureau and the office of the Attorney General.

Send the same information to the company in writing and keep a copy in your file.

Dieting is another equally important, if not more important, issue you need to think about. Make this a learning experience that you won't have to repeat.

"All my friends and I are always on some kind of diet. Sometimes we try things we read about in magazines and we usually try whatever diet our mothers are on at the time. Most of us don't stay on one plan long enough to find out if it really works or not. I recently read that dieting like that is bad for your health. What do you think?"

Do you dieters weigh significantly more than health officials recommend for your height and body type? If you're not sure whether you're actually overweight, talk with your parents about making an appointment with a physician or dietitian to assess your weight status. All you may need is some body toning.

Nutrition experts do not recommend fad dieting. It is usually not effective in the long term. It may not be nutritionally sound and, therefore, harmful to your health. It may also be very expensive to buy the special foods or dietary supplements.

What they do recommend is a nutritionally balanced food plan accompanied by an active exercise program — in other words, a change in lifestyle. The things in your life which contribute to a need for weight loss also contribute to health dangers — high fat and cholesterol, excessive salt, too many empty calories and too little physical exercise.

By the way, your moms need to tune in to what you're learning. It applies to them too.

If you have any questions concerning your teenage years, write Dr. Ann Jarratt, 4-H youth development specialist, Box 9641, Mississippi State, MS 39762.

Are students exempt from withholding?

Students getting part-time summer jobs are sometimes confused about whether federal taxes should be withheld from their paychecks.

According to the IRS, students with part-time or vacation jobs should consider whether or not to have federal taxes withheld from their wages.

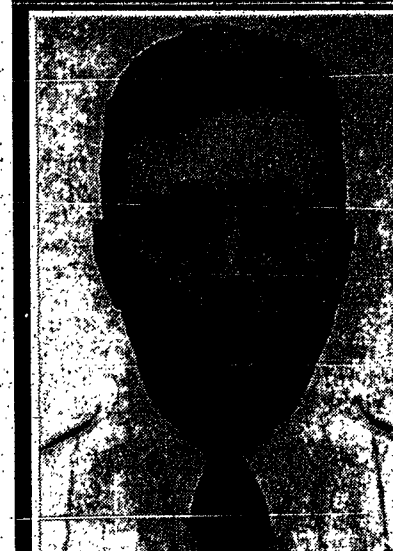

Employees, including students, fill out a Form W-4, "Employee's Withholding Allowance Certificate," when first getting a job but may resubmit a new form at any time to update their filing status and/or change the number of withholding allowances.

Employees may elect exempt status and have no federal taxes withheld from their wages in certain circumstances. To qualify for exemption, the employee must have had a right to a refund of all federal income tax withheld last year because he or she had no income tax liability, and the same situation is expected again this year.

However, total income for the year, as well as whether or not they can be claimed as a dependent on another person tax return will be determining factors.

Further information is available in IRS Publication "Student's Guide to Federal Income Tax." This booklet and Form W-4 are available free at your local IRS office or by calling, toll-free, 1-800-TAX-FORM.

Statement of Congressman Taylor July 19 on Waco hearing

Because the House committee hearings regarding the matter of the Branch Davidians were structured in a way to prevent members of Congress from speaking on how they felt about the hearings, South Mississippi Congressman Gene Taylor submitted the following statement for the record on July 19.

"I am a member of the NRA. I own a semi-automatic weapon. And I voted against the Brady Bill and the so-called assault weapons ban."

As a child I lived next door to the Hancock County Sheriff. My best friend and my oldest child's godfather is a career police officer.

Every year at Christmas Mass I worship in the same church as two brothers from Bay St. Louis. And every year at the mass my thoughts turn to the sadness that must dwell in their hearts. You see, one Christmas morning nearly 30 years ago, when David and Mike Kenny were small boys, they lost their father.

He was a Mississippi Highway patrolman who was killed by a drunk driver while on duty. Now, three decades later, David is a Mississippi Highway patrolman. Every day he and his comrades protect families like mine.

For these and many other reasons I have to admit that I have a prejudice on behalf of our law enforcement community.

I was appalled as a teenager in the 60's when hippies routinely referred to policemen as "pigs." I'm equally appalled today when people who should know better refer to law enforcement personnel as "jackbooted thugs."

I am equally angry when I look at the witness list prepared by the chairmen that apparently ignored all the facts that led up to the murder of four people who were sworn to enforce the laws passed by this Congress.

You see, I don't claim to have all the answers—and therefore look forward to getting them. But if the truth be told, I can draw only one conclusion from the list of witnesses:

Our chairmen aren't willing to give those four dead ATF agents, and the 20 or more who were wounded, the same rights that the criminal scum of our nation are given every time they enter a courtroom to be charged with murder, rape or the distribution of drugs.

Apparently our chairmen don't think that the law enforcement personnel deserve the right to be presumed innocent until proven guilty.

I think that if this committee has a shred of fairness and decency, and wants to know the whole truth, then we have an obligation to subpoena the authors of the newspaper series, "The Sinful Messiah," Mark England and Karlene McCormick.

We should subpoena a series of articles in the Waco-Tribune Herald that detailed the lawless and perverted mentality of Vernon Howell, also known as David Koresh.

We should subpoena Chief Deputy Sheriff Daniel Wyenberg of the McLennan County Sheriff's Department, the first to call the ATF.

This committee needs to know the truth about the allegations of illegal aliens, child molestation, and the "hit list" supposedly copied to silence his enemies and former cult members.

This committee needs to know these things that led to the decision to search the compound. And we need to know about the apparent danger that those people who serve our country and enforce its laws faced when they made the decisions leading to the events of February 28."

State Auditor initiates Performance Audit

State Auditor Steve Patterson initiated the second phase of the Mississippi Statewide Performance Audit this week by meeting with representatives of Mississippi's government. Authorized by the 1995 Legislature, the Audit's "Phase Two" requires the State Auditor to determine and report whether agencies affected by the audit have made progress implementing its recommendations.

"Work to fulfill the Legislature's mandate is well under way. Over the rest of the year we're going to sit down with agency executives and begin a conversation about improving government—about making it more responsive, more efficient and more effective," Patterson said.

"We've begun talking about an idea whose time has come and whose adoption by Mississippi is inevitable—cutting waste from government," Patterson said.

When seeking Legislative authorization for the audit which was completed in December, Patterson guaranteed that an expenditure of $500,000 would identify at least $50 million in savings.

However, when completed, the audit's potential projected savings amounted to $138.8 million annually—and a total of $650 million by the year 2000.

Mississippi's Statewide Performance Audit was authorized by the 1994 Legislature and completed in December, 1994; $500,000 was appropriated to the State Auditor's Office for the work.

The final report consists of two performance audits: Personnel and Benefits and Purchasing, as well as issue papers in the areas of Agriculture, Corrections, Education, Public Safety, Financial Management, Economic Development, Health and Human Services.

"Responses to the Performance Audit have been positive. Performance auditing is new to Mississippi government. Guiding state government through this challenge is the performance goal I have set for myself, the Auditor's Office and all of Mississippi's government," Patterson said.

"The conversations begun this week hold the promise of literally transforming the way Mississippi government works. Many agencies have seized this opportunity and come forward with ideas that refine and expand our recommendations."

"Mississippians are starting to think differently about their government—and our leaders are beginning to realize that there are better ways out there to serve the people."

"Even old bureaucrats who have traditionally resisted any change are now beginning to embrace new and more innovative ways of conducting the people's business," Patterson said.

"With this audit we're actually beginning to create a government that works, a government that thinks, a government that innovates, and a government creative enough to face the challenge of tomorrow."

Some People Would Call This A Handful.
That's why we're here.

There's a special peace of mind expectant mothers find at Slidell Memorial Hospital. It comes from knowing that every baby born here is surrounded by board certified neonatologists, neonatal nurse practitioners, neonatal nurses and the very best newborn technology available.
Many newborns, especially premature babies, have special needs that can only be met in the unique environment of our Level III Neonatal Intensive Care Unit. Some babies spend only a day or two here under the watchful eye and loving care of our nursing team. Other babies may spend several weeks in our unit, overcoming low birth weights, developing stronger lungs or recovering from other birth-related complications.
And during this time a special bond forms with our nurses, who not only nurture and love each baby, but give strength and support to parents as well. Caring for our Level III NICU babies is a tremendous responsibility that requires a commitment to believing there is no job too big and the tenderness to understand there is no job too small.
To find out more about our Crib Course maternity program, call us at 646-0044 to receive our comprehensive services brochure.

Q. I have started college savings funds for my preschool children, but I continue to wrestle with whose name to put the money in. I don't want to lose control in case one child should need more than the other or one doesn't go to college. However, I would like to have it taxed at the kids' lower rate. What's the best choice?

A. The best answer is usually a combination of saving in your name and the children's names. Before you can decide, there are many factors which should be considered.

College financial aid. The standard federal aid formula requires that 35 percent of the student's resources be used for college while only 5.6 percent of the parent's assets must be used. If you save $10,000 in your name, the government aid formula expects $560 to go toward college. If you save $10,000 in your child's name, $3,500 is attributed to college.

Though some families making over $125,000 receive aid, getting it takes planning. Eligibility is determined using a complex formula (including finances, household membership, children in college and age of parents).

The time period reviewed begins January 1 of your child's junior year and ends December more do I put the college savings?

Gift tax. Each year financial gifts over $10,000 are submitted each year. Gifts made during the year, including pension distributions, capital gains distributions, bonuses, or income tax refunds, affect your chances of getting aid. Parents' income may be assessed up to 47 percent in the financial aid calculation.

Where you save is critical. Money in retirement plans such as IRAs, Keoghs and 401(k) plans as well as home equity and insurance cash value do not count against you as assets when calculating financial aid.

In addition to federal aid, new tuition assistance program is available through the state of Mississippi. The Mississippi Resident Tuition Assistance Grant and the Mississippi Eminent Scholars Grant applications award from $500 to $2,500 to eligible students. Get applications through the Mississippi Postsecondary Education Financial Assistance Board at 1-800-327-2980.

Income taxes. The "kiddie tax" affects investments bought in your preschool child's name. For children under 14, the first $650 of unearned income in 1995 is not taxed at all. The next $650 of investment earnings is taxed at the child's rate. In 1995, when investment income exceeds $1,300, the child pays tax at the parents' highest marginal tax rate.

After annual investment earnings exceed $1,300 there is no point in transferring more money to the child until he reaches age 14. At that age, the "kiddie tax" no longer applies. Then, if tax savings outweigh other factors, funds can be gifted to the child without estate tax consequences in $10,000 increments annually per child, per donee.

Parents' age. An excellent option exists for parents who have kids after 40. Put money into a retirement account where it grows tax-deferred and is not counted in federal financial aid calculations. You should turn age 59½ while your child is in college. The money can be withdrawn without incurring the 10 percent early withdrawal penalty. If possible, borrow against the retirement account until the child finishes college so that you don't hurt your chances for financial aid.

Child's age, aptitude and attitude. Shifting larger amounts to your child at age 14 can make sense with taxes. Also, as the child grows older you will know more about aptitude and college needs. But don't ignore the college student's ability to contribute. In 1995, students can earn $3,900 before paying income taxes.

Savings and investment strategy. If you buy U.S. Savings bonds, and your 1995 adjusted gross income is under $63,450 (joint return)/$42,300 (single taxpayer) bonds are registered in the parent's name and proceeds used for college are tax-free. The benefit is phased out gradually by the time income reaches $93,450 (joint)/$57,300 (single).

If your income exceeds these limits which are adjusted for inflation, buy the bonds in your child's name so income is taxed at the child's usually lower rate.

One overlooked savings strategy is paying down the mortgage. This frees income for tuition payments, lowers assets for financial aid purposes by shifting them to home equity which is not counted, keeps the assets in your name and leaves you in better rather than worse shape after college days are past.

This article is intended for general information. See your tax advisor for more detailed rules on earned and unearned income for dependents.

Hancock residents participate in SSC summer education program

School is out for the summer, but several Hancock County residents are still "hitting the books" in numerous summer education programs hosted by NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center.

The Education and University Affairs Office at Stennis sponsors several summer education programs for teachers, students and faculty members. The scope of the programs range from training in computer programs to encouraging interest in specific fields of study to enhancing relationships between NASA and local universities.

Maria Lott and Linda Hennigan are participating in the DATUM workshop or Data Acquisition and Training Utilization Model, July 6-26. Both teach at Gulfview Elementary School in Lakeshore.

DATUM is designed to train fifth through eighth grade teachers to become proficient in data collection and analysis using a personal computer. Upon completion of the program, teachers receive a computer, a printer and data acquisition equipment for use in the classroom and for training other teachers.

In turn, the school districts provide matching equipment, so it is like the schools get two computers for the price of one plus personal training.

Through DATUM, teachers not only learn the basics of computer skills, they also learn to use an integrated software package containing word processing, drawing, spreadsheet, paint, database and communications capabilities. Additionally, they learn to choose and use sensors in conjunction with a data collection interface to collect, record and analyze data.

The 14 DATUM participants took this learning process one step further when they traveled to Kennedy Space Center in Florida for the July 13 launch of the Space Shuttle Discovery. The teachers toured the Launch Control Complex to study how the Space Shuttle records and analyzes data, giving them an example of real-time data collection.

Melissa Knight, a senior at Our Lady Academy in Bay St. Louis, was chosen as an apprentice for SHARP, NASA's Summer High School Apprenticeship Research Program.

SHARP was developed to provide a unique opportunity for students with strong aptitudes for science, mathematics and engineering careers.

During the eight-week summer session, this select group of students is provided work and educational experiences with NASA scientists and engineers. Only seven students from Pearl River County, the Mississippi Gulf Coast and the southeastern Louisiana area were chosen as SHARP apprentices this year.

New real estate brokers

Real estate license examinations were held July 10 in Jackson for those persons desiring to enter the field of real estate sales, rentals and other related real estate activities.

Twenty-seven individuals applied for the broker's license and 113 individuals applied for the salesperson's license. Eighty-six percent of those sitting for the brokers examination successfully completed the requirements and will now become licensed real estate brokers.

Seventy-one percent of those sitting for the salespersons examination successfully completed the requirements and will not be awarded the salespersons license.

The examination consists of 100 questions prepared by the American College Testing Services (ACT) for real estate license law officials across the United States and Canada. Applicants are questioned concerning the Mississippi real estate license law and rules and regulations governing their activities in that vocation.

Commissioner Lenny Sawyer, 5th Congressional District, Gulfport, announced Scott Favre of Diamondhead and Rudy Letellier of Bay St. Louis have been issued broker's licenses.

balances before they can officially enroll.

For more information, call the USM registrar's office at 266-5006.

USM officials warned a new governmental regulation that went into effect July 1 prohibits students from using federal financial aid to cover unpaid balances from the 1994-95 school year or earlier.

USM Registrar Danny Montgomery said of approximately 9,500 fee invoices due to be mailed out, "about 4,000 will go to students who have prior balances."

Students planning to attend fall classes must pay half their new fees and clear all past-due

Scottish Highland Games

The sound of the bagpipes and the wearing of the Tartan will mark the 1995 seventh annual Scottish Highland Games of Mississippi, held once again at the Jim Buck Ross Agriculture and Forestry Museum on Lakeland Drive just east of Interstate 55 in Jackson.

The Mississippi games are hosted by the Jim Buck Ross Agricultural Museum and Belhaven College. The event was established to further the Scottish heritage shared by many of today's Mississippians and to support the Highland Dancing and Bagpipe scholarships at Belhaven.

Although the origins of the Highland Games are lost in the mists of time, it is known that they have continued throughout the ages in Scotland, held before royalty annually, starting during the reign of King

Malcolm Canmore over 900 years ago.

Originally these games were held to determine through various tests of strength the warrior leaders of the individual clans. The modern games have been modified somewhat and include Highland Dancing, pipe band and individual piping competitions as well as the heavy athletics, such as caber toss, hammer throw, sheaf toss and other tests of strength.

Facilities are provided for the various attending clans and families to display their Tartans, banners, and to relate family history.

Continuous stage entertainment by Scottish vocalists, instrumentalists and the music of Celtic groups; also children's Scottish athletic event; the always popular British car show; border collie demonstrations; Scottish country dancing and many other events, with the plus of visiting the museum and its historic village, will make a truly grand family outing.

August 25: Golf tourney, LeFleurs Bluff, 9 a.m. History of Scottish whiskey and tasting, Quality Inn, 5 p.m. Sponsors' reception at the Museum, 7 p.m.

August 26: Highland Games begin. Gates open 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Ceilidh, Museum, 7:30 p.m. August 27: Games continue 10 a.m.-4 p.m.

Kirkin O' the Tartan/Flowers of the Forest, Museum grounds, 10:30 a.m.

General admission is adults $6, children under 12 free. Group game tickets for 10 or more are $5 each.

For information, call (601) 924-5270 Bob Touchstone; (601) 939-8220 Shirley Quarles; (601) 354-6113 Ag Museum.

Basic serger workshop

Do you have a new serger but aren't sure how to get the most from it? Since sergers are so different from conventional sewing machines, new owners can be intimidated by the complexity.

A workshop on basic serger use will be Monday, July 31 in the meeting room of the Human Services Complex in Bay St. Louis.

Students will bring a serger and materials to make various construction samples.

Registration is required, although there is no charge for the class. Please call (601) 467-5456 to pre-register. A list of supplies will be sent at that time. The class is sponsored by the Hancock County Extension Service and is open to any interested individuals.

Bay-Waveland Little League Fast Pitch Softball

The Bay St. Louis All-Star Little League (11-12-year-old) and the Senior League (13-15-year-old) won the Mississippi state titles again this year. It is the second year in a row for the Little League team and the third consecutive year for the Senior League team to win the titles.

The Little League team, sponsored by L. Kay Johnson, played four games in the state tournament, winning them all. They started off against Meridian, and won 13-4. Chloe Schornick was the winning pitcher with four strike-outs.

The second game was against Stone County and the Bay team won 26-0. Kristy Sand started the game as the pitcher but after one inning was removed and replaced with Melissa LaFontaine.

The bats were alive for Bay St. Louis, with three hits for Schornick and Yashema Ambrose and two for Kristy Sand.

In the third game, the Bay played Saucier and won 16-6. Ambrose went the distance, pitching four innings and striking out three. Schornick, Sand, Ashlee Storey, Ambrose, Denise Dickinson, Katie DiBenedetto and Diane Blaise teamed up for hits.

In the championship game, Stone County came out of the losers bracket to face the Bay St. Louis team. Once again, Bay wasted no time in putting the game away. They stopped Stone County in four innings, capturing the title with a 13-1 victory.

Schornick pitched three innings and had seven strike-outs. Sand finished the game with one inning and recorded two strike outs. Darien Williams, Dickinson, Virginia Tisdale, Sand, Schornick, Sky Thomas and Ambrose all had base hits.

Bay St. Louis advanced as Mississippi's representative in the sectional tournament being played in Baker, LA, this weekend.

The Senior League team, sponsored by Key West Inn, only had to play three games to win the title of Mississippi State Champs. Bay St. Louis team started out against Waynesboro, and won in five innings.

Tara Carrigee started the game and pitched two innings, striking out four batters and giving up no runs. Tara Burrell came in relief and pitched the next two innings. Amberely Bilbo came in the fifth to finish the game and struck out two.

Stefanie Griffis hit a triple and a double. Belle Penrose doubled and Tara Carrigee, Dori Lacoste and Raquel Fontenot. Bilbo and Carrigee all had singles.

The second game for the Bay was against Saucier, which the girls won 21-4 in five innings. The pitching rotation was the same, with Carrigee pitching the first two with four strike-outs, Burrell pitching the second two with one strike-out and Bilbo closing the last inning. Shannon Baker, Heather Wopat, Stefanie Griffis, Tara Carrigee, Dori Lacoste, Bilbo, Shannon Rose, and Raquel Fontenot all had hits.

Learning some 'Rodeo-ology'

Does your cowboy hat and boots make you feel like a cowboy? Because the 9th Annual Mississippi Coast Championship Rodeo is less than two weeks away, and it's time to learn some "Rodeo-ology" to impress family and friends.

The cowboy has long been an universal symbol by which the United States is known. He began life as a hired man on horseback, and through his courage, his determination, his candor and his humor grew into an authentic legend.

Today, this legacy, along with the traditions and heritage, are most visibly exemplified by the professional rodeo cowboy. For this is the only sport that came directly from his forefather's everyday work as they tamed and settled America.

The upcoming pro rodeo Aug. 4-6 at the Mississippi Coast Coliseum is approved or sanctioned by the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association (PRCA).

The PRCA writes the rules, approves over 800 rodeos a year, recruits sponsors and promotes rodeos with a combined members of over 10,000 contestants, stock contractors, committees and contract personnel.

In rodeo, there are two types of contests, roughstock events, which depend on balance and endurance, and timed events, which depend on skill and speed.

The roughstock events include: saddle bronc riding, bareback riding and bullriding, while the timed events are barrel racing, team roping, calf roping and steer wrestling.

In roughstock events, the score the contestants receive is based on the performance of the animal and the cowboy with a maximum score of 50 each. The closer a cowboy is to a 100 score, the better the ride and the possibilities of winning the title and prize money. In timed events, the object is to complete the task in the shortest period of time.

Saddle bronc riding demands superb balance and flamboyant style, more than brute strength. The rider has to find and match the rhythm of the animal as well as spur the whole eight seconds without touching any part of the horse or he is disqualified.

Bareback riders, who are denied reins or a saddle, are judged on their spurring technique and control. They are anchored to the horse with little more than a suitcase handle.

If the cowboy does not have his boots ahead of the horse's shoulders with the spurs touching the horse, when the animal's front feet touch the ground the first jump from the chute, he is disqualified.

In bullriding, the name of the game is to "hold on and stay alive." Cowboys have to expect sudden moves, tilts, turns, twists, jumps and drops all done at lightning speed. Bullriders ride with just a flat-braided "loose" rope pulled tight (not tied) around the animal and held fast by the riding hand.

A bullrider is disqualified if he touches the animal with his free hand or is thrown off before the eight second buzzer sounds.

The objective of the horse and rider in barrel racing is to run the fastest time around barrels set up in a "cloverleaf" or triangle pattern. Competition is tough, and winning or losing can be based on hundredths of a second difference in scores.

For each of the barrels knocked over during a run, that contestant has five seconds added to her total time.

Barrel racing is the only sport of women rodeo competitors that is approved by the PRCA through a sister organization, called the Women's Professional Rodeo Association (WPRA).

Try running a horse at full speed and falling off the side to wrestle a steer to the ground using only leverage and strength, and you will have experienced steer wrestling or "bulldogging."

The action switches to the opposite end of the arena as the steer wrestler and his partner or "hazer," whose job it is to keep the steer from veering away from the steer wrestler, line up behind a barrier to begin their run.

The steer is given a head start and when the steer reaches the "scoreline" the barrier is released and the steer wrestler and his hazer go to work with all of this happening in a short of time as 3 to 5 seconds.

Team roping is the only true team event, which requires close cooperation between two cowboys and their horses. The "header" is the first to rope. He must catch the steer around the horns, then "dallies" or ties the rope around the saddle horn and rides to the left to turn the steer away from the "heeler."

As this is done, the heeler ropes the steers hind feet and if he only catches one foot it is a five second penalty added to the team's time. The clock is stopped when no slack is in the rope and the ropers are facing each other.

More than any other event in professional rodeo, calf roping has roots dating back to the Old West when an animal was sick or injured and it had to be caught and doctored.

Ranch hands prided themselves on how fast they could rope and tie calves and soon informal contests started.

Calf roping requires experienced horsemanship, fast sprinter and quick hands. After the calf's head start, the cowboy throws his loop around the calf's neck and his horse stops. He must dismount, run to the calf, throw it to the ground by hand ("flanking") and tie any three legs together with a "pigging string."

This is a brief lesson in "Rodeo-ology." To learn more about the rodeo and its heritage, rodeo equipment, terminology and many more things related to the sport, come at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and at 2 p.m. Sunday for a special program called Reach. It is an informative and fun look at rodeo for children and adults.

For information on the rodeo, contact the Mississippi Coast Coliseum at (601) 388-8010.

'Native Son' license

Effective July 1, anybody born in Mississippi and now living in another state is eligible to purchase a lifetime hunting and fishing license.

Officials at the Mississippi Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks (MDWFP) say the native son and daughter license was passed by the Mississippi Legislature and signed by Gov. Kirk Fordice.

"It's basically an extension of our present lifetime license which is available for all Mississippi residents," said Shirley Jordan, MDWFP director of licenses.

"The agency felt the need to offer the privilege of a lifetime license to those people who were born in Mississippi and have since, for one reason or another, moved away."

The license will cost $1,000 and covers all hunting and fishing opportunities offered by a regular lifetime license. The license must be purchased from the Jackson office at 2906 North State Street, and the applicant must produce a certified copy of his or her birth certificate.

The scholarship is awarded each spring by Wal-Mart to an area college- or university-bound high school senior and is payable over a one-year period.

Smith, a Hancock High School graduate, plans to attend Millsaps College this fall.

In making the announcement, Gaudin said, "It is with great pleasure that we announce (Smith) as the winner of this year's scholarship. It was a difficult decision for our local judges who had to select from many outstanding students."

In addition, scholarship alternates selected are first alternate, Bich Tran of Pass Christian, attending Loyola University; and second alternate Julie Ryan of Pass Christian, attending Vanderbilt University.

Recognized for their efforts serving as judges in scholarship selection are Lee Ann Whiddon, John Mason, Dr. J. D. Rutherford and David Garcia.

HOROSCOPES

July 23-29

ARIES — March 21/April 20
A friend from your past will try and contact you this week. You could find out some interesting news about this person. An in-law or distant family member with whom you've had some troubles will surprise you with a kinder, gentler attitude. Perhaps s/he deserves a second chance.

TAURUS — April 21/May 21
Take advantage of an introspective mood. You could learn something about yourself. If work is getting you down, you may just need a day off to recharge your batteries. Go ahead; you deserve it. Kick back, relax and slow down your pace for a while. Good news is on the way.

GEMINI — May 22/June 21
No matter what your line of work, this week you will excel. Your natural creativity combined with your subtle charm will put you ahead of the game. Your love life doesn't look so bad either. Both single and attached Geminis can look forward to attention from the opposite sex.

CANCER — June 22/July 22
A new friendship may be formed with someone who shares a common interest. This could be the start of a lasting bond as long as you're willing to let someone new into your life. Although it is good to be cautious, it also can hold you back. Learn to find a happy medium.

LEO — July 23/August 23
If objectives seem hard to reach, it may be time to reevaluate your goals. Perhaps you're being overly ambitious. There may be trouble in paradise when it comes to your love life. You may have to put that stubborn Leo pride aside if you want to work things out.

VIRGO — Aug 24/Sept 22
If you're willing to put in the work, high rewards can be yours. It's totally up to you. You will, however, have to sacrifice free time and socializing. After all, everything has a price. An unexpected invitation gives you something to look forward to in the coming month.

LIBRA — Sept 23/Oct 23
Mixing business with pleasure can be beneficial as long as you keep your usual professional demeanor. Otherwise you could be the center of gossip in no time. Watch what you say and be sure to stay away from alcohol. Even one drink is enough to knock down the defenses and say something you'll regret.

SCORPIO — Oct 24/Nov 22
Relying on others to get the job done may be the cause of frustration and delay. You may have to take on more of the load than you had anticipated if you want the job done right. A loved one may want more of your time than you have to give. Try to find a reasonable balance.

SAGITTARIUS — Nov 23/Dec 21
Holding grudges will get you nowhere. A friend who's disappointed you deserves a second chance. Look at the entire picture and you may have a change of heart. A Taurus of the opposite sex may be interested in you. Proceed only if you're ready to settle down.

CAPRICORN — Dec 22/Jan 20
Instead of harboring anger and frustration towards someone, it's better to talk things out. The subject of your anger may not even be aware that s/he's done something wrong or offensive. Communication could be the answer to a number of your problems. It's worth a try!

AQUARIUS — Jan 21/Feb 18
A spur-of-the-moment, mid-week excursion is what you need to put some spark into your fire. The mysterious behavior of a loved one may be impossible to figure out, especially if s/he is a Scorpio. Some puzzles are better left unsolved. Conservative spending is your best bet this week.

PISCES — Feb 19/March 20
A new line of study or training may be necessary to proceed in the direction you're looking towards. Even if this seems like a hassle now, it will be well worth it in the long run. On Friday, what seems like an odd coincidence may not be a coincidence at all. Don't be too trusting.

YOUR BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

The next 12 months:
If you have been in a position of authority for some time, it may soon be coming to an end. Don't panic! This could mean retirement or a promotion in a more creative, less managerial position. Either way, your responsibilities will be shifted sometime early this year. Your love life may closely resemble a roller coaster ride for much of the year. This is especially true if you're involved with a Scorpio. If you're not careful, tempers and pride can get in the way of a lot of good times this year. Luck will be on your side during November and February. Those are the times to make big decisions.

Travel and Entertainment

Tourism inquiries continue to increase

Tourism officials with the Mississippi Division of Tourism Development report the number of requests for Mississippi tourist information continues to increase.

Over the past two years, the Division of Tourism Development has shown large increases in the number of inquiries year over year. Fiscal year ending June 1994 showed inquiry increases of 122 percent over 1993, for a total of 152,414 inquiries.

Fiscal year ending June 1995 was also a success as an increase in inquiries of over 83 percent was realized. This 83 percent increase in inquiries was actually 24 percent over projections of 54,390 inquiries over their goal for the year.

George Smith, director, Mississippi Tourism Development said, "We credit this increase due to the funding received from the state legislature. This year, $7.5 million was appropriated to tourism for advertising and promotion. Their investment has increased the visibility of the Mississippi tourism product."

In 1993, the legislature appropriated $5 million to advertise and promote the Mississippi tourism product. Prior to 1993, Tourism Development did not receive funding to advertise and promote.

Smith added, "Year two of our advertising campaign was designed to build up our first year, continue to extend the advertising presence of the Division of Tourism while building on the existing media base."

"This was accomplished with print ads strategically placed in a series of magazines reaching our target families with children and secondarily, mature adults."

"Television was introduced into the campaign just prior to the summer blitz and had dramatic effects on the number of leads generated during this time frame. During the third year of the campaign we intend to extend the television presence further with additional commercials and utilize interactive media to impact the target and generate additional leads."

According to Rebecca Ains-

worth, manager of Consumer Fulfillment, "Convenience and the personal touch are key components we utilize when responding to our visitors' requests for information. Our toll-free telephone number, 1-800-WARMEST provides an easy method for individuals to request additional information. Potential visitors call and speak with our hospitality specialists at our fulfillment center, located in Ocean Springs."

The staff answers questions and fulfills their requests for brochures. The materials are mailed within 24 hours. Ainsworth continued, "So often in this age of high-tech, high-touch, one must maneuver through a maze of mechanical vice prompts to request information."

"The response from callers is one of surprise that someone is there to speak with them and assist with their travel plans. Our slogan is The South's Warmest Welcome and this personal touch reinforces the message."

T's goal for Mississippi Tourism Development for this year is to increase the number of inquiries generated by 20 percent to 333,000.

Tourism and recreation for Mississippi is a $3.8 billion segment of the economy which generates $300 million in general fund tax revenues.
